your kind messages at one of our merry meetings when he had come in with his masters water pipe and he was delighted and sent all sorts of civil and dutiful messages in return, much more than I can translate in this letter; Codja Andrè is a clerk in the Post Office at Nuhshiwan (Russia). Dr Cormick is at Tabreez married to one of the most beautiful girls in the country; he has an income of about a thousand a year English money, besides the interest of his money in the funds. He is talking of asking for leave for England, to see the great exhibition[127] and also to pursue his medical studies in Europe. I ought to tell you that he has already passed his examinations as an apothecary surgeon and M. D. but medical study is his passion and he is actually thinking of getting leave for England for one or two years, by doing which he will have to give up his income all but about two hundred pounds a year, half of his net pay. John Cormick now a captain has left his regiment the 40*th* and exchanged into one under orders for India, where I suppose he has now arrived. So you see other people knock about the world besides you and I, even those who can well afford to stay at home. Captn McDonald died in the Punjaub last year, a natural death, notwithstanding his presentiment that he should die with his boots on. What a good amiable man he was, where did you see him? I believe I gave you a pretty good account of my own income and employment in my last letter but since that I have changed the day of the paper's coming out from Friday to Thursday, the first week this was very difficult. Monday Tuesday and Wednesday I, and my two clerks, had worked like mill-horses, when you may imagine my disgust on Wednesday evening at receiving a note from the printer saying the paper would be out on Thursday evening, that is too late for distribution. I immediately wrote him a note as follows. "Hadji Abdul Mahomed — if the paper is not out before 12 o'clock tomorrow I shall complain to the Govt and do my utmost to get a heavy fine inflicted upon you — so please yourself." The paper was out before eight the next morning. This same Hadji Abdul Mahomed appears to be a very respectable man and the best printer in Persia, but he is much too slow for Govt work with which he has had little to do and he requires spurring — as above.

I have received a letter from a man named "Ayer" Lowell Mass. U. S. with a box of what I suppose to be lozenges or some preparation for chest complaints begging me to present them to the King in his name. This I shall do without opening the box as I might not be able to pack it so well again. The King is now absent and will soon be at Ispahan and I shall forward the box to his chief physician and hope to get some return as an autograph letter medal or something else for Mr Ayer, of whom I know nothing. He has written me a vulgar letter and appears himself to be an ass.
